

ACOM Observes First National Celebrate Services Day

September 24, 2010

During its inaugural National Celebrate Services Day on Sept. 16, the Association for Convention Operations Management (ACOM) recognized convention services managers (CSMs) at nearly 30 events in cities across the United States and Canada, it announced this week.

Themed "Service: The Face of Promise – The Heart of Commitment," National Celebrate Services Day gave ACOM members the opportunity to host or attend a networking event with other CSMs in their city—all on Sept. 16. The goal, according to ACOM, was to "stimulate camaraderie among industry professionals, obtain new members for the association and help spread the word about the important role of convention services."

"Convention services professionals across the country truly joined together to make this event a success and showcase the value CSMs bring to the overall meeting experience," said ACOM President, Marilyn Healey.
